“Monar, grandma... you are the hero of my story. You taught me unconditional love and forgiveness. You brought me back to God in a deeper level. My life with you has missing years but also has joyful memories. Your last few weeks of life were the closest I'd ever felt with you. It was my honor to care for you, to show you the love you've shown your legacy of a family. These last few weeks with you, we created a true, authentic bond that I never experienced when I was younger. You're still my rock, my lighthouse and my guidance in a world full of darkness. My Baby, you are the epitome of a Godly woman and the epitome of love. Thank you, thank you for showing me love, teaching me how to nurture, how to cook and how to be a woman.

P.S.

I kinda miss chasing you around Walmart and occasionally "losing" you lol

“ My Mom was such an amazing woman and no one was greater then her Heavenly Father. She had such a warm and sensitive heart for others and would carry their problems till she couldn't carry them anymore. She never had hate in her heart only love. I will miss calling her to see how her day went or how she felt and if she needed anything. Our Saturdays were ordering groceries and anything else she wanted, or running errands when I would spend weekend with her, our talks and her cute smile and that cute laugh she had. Mom would say Teresa you're not just my daughter you're my Buddy as well. I don't have enough space to write all my memories, but my heart will forever. I know you and dad are together now in heaven, I'll see you again soon. Love you and miss you always.

“ My grandma is a beautiful person that loved God, family and Chihuahuas. She accepted me through all my phases of life and was always proud of me. I love her dearly and will miss her. I am so grateful that my family and I were able to see her and enjoy her company one last time before she transitioned to heaven with grandpa. I didn't want to say goodbye but let her know we love her while she was still with us on earth. She never missed a birthday of my family and would text me that she loved me from time to time, and I will miss that. Love you grandma, enjoy eternal happiness with your loved ones in heaven until we see you again.
