POPI can't believe what happened today. The rain is falling and I can't think of what to say. Heavy tears fall down my flushed cheeks. And I know I will be broken up like this for weeks. And the people around me are crying tears of mourn. But the person who has left today has left my heart torn. Everything people are saying I can't seem to fit them in my head. Just this morning mom came up to tell me my grandpa was dead. The memory of him will still live in my mind. I will never leave him behind. Just the thought of him makes me better off in every way. Pop I will think of you each and every day. I will always love you, your grandson Chey.
